

I Swear by Apollo the physician, and Aesculapius, and Health, and All-Heal, and all that I hold sacred, that, according to my ability and judgment, I will keep this Oath and this stipulation.

To regard those who taught me this Art with respect, to share my skills with them, and help them if required; to look upon all Chirurgeons as my own guild family, to help them teach this Art, to those who wish to learn it, without fee or stipulation; and that by precept, lecture, and every other mode of instruction, I will impart a knowledge of the Art to those who wish to become Chirurgeons, and to all bound by a commitment to serve the populace.

I will provide that system of care which, according to my ability and judgment, I consider for the benefit of the ill or injured, and abstain from whatever is harmful or unethical. I will recommend no medicine to anyone if asked, lest it be deadly, nor suggest any such counsel; and in like manner I will not give anything that would be used for harm.

With purity and with holiness I will pass my life and practice my Art. I will not try to treat beyond my training, but will leave this to be done by those who are practitioners of this work. Into whatever camps and households I enter, I will go into them for the benefit of the sick and injured, and will abstain from every voluntary act of mischief and corruption; and further, from taking any advantage of others. Whatever, in the practice of my Art or not, that I see or hear, in the lives of the people, which ought not to be spoken aloud, I will not speak, reckoning that all such should be kept secret.

While I continue to keep this Oath unviolated, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and the practice of the Art, respected by all, in all times! But should I trespass and violate this Oath, may the reverse be my lot!
